Reading: Jeremiah 29:1-7 (New International Version)

A Letter to the Exile

29 This is the word of the Lord from the prophet Jeremiah to the exiles of Judah whom he carried away to Babylon in the year of the king Zedekiah. Jeremiah had carried the word from the Lord to the exiles. "This is the word of the Lord," and the word makes its own effect: while the words of exile and freedom are still in their mouths, the promise that you will go back from exile is fulfilled. "So declared the Lord to Zedekiah king of Judah, and to Jerusalem and to the people that were with him, from Jerusalem." He declared the word to Zedekiah king of Judah and to Jerusalem and to the people that were with him, from Jerusalem. "So declared the Lord to Zedekiah king of Judah and to Jerusalem and to the people that were with him, from Jerusalem."

"This is the word of the Lord," and the word makes its own effect: while the words of exile and freedom are still in their mouths, the promise that you will go back from exile is fulfilled. "So declared the Lord to Zedekiah king of Judah and to Jerusalem and to the people that were with him, from Jerusalem." He declared the word to Zedekiah king of Judah and to Jerusalem and to the people that were with him, from Jerusalem. "So declared the Lord to Zedekiah king of Judah and to Jerusalem and to the people that were with him, from Jerusalem."
